

Living In A World Gone Crazy

First of all, what do we know that is a fact on this world? I will give you one answer; Opposites.

Everyone knows for every action there is also an equal opposite re-action. This is a fact. What goes up must come down. This is a fact. What is black, there must be white. What is dead must also be alive. I can continue this on forever, but I am assuming you get the idea.

Now if we look at this fact properly, it applies for everything that surrounds us today. We can even do this for things in space. We have a world that is full of life, and a moon which is dead. We have a bright burning sun, and then we have a black ocean of space. This principle is our way of life.

With that out the way, let's take a closer look on what is happening here on our planet. Here we have people, animals, water, deserts and so on. Let's take a look at people. Whether we like it or not we all have opposites. Some of us have white skin, some have black skin. Some like to have fun, some like to be depressed. Some like to swim, while others like to walk or run. Every person likes to do different things. And usually it's opposite to what the person next to you is doing. Which is where the old saying goes, opposites attract. Usually if you find someone that does everything you do, we usually don't become friends. Mainly because it gets boring, as most people like others that are different.

But yet we have racism, and we have people that do not like religions people and so on.

So what is happening here?

Why are their people like that, to cause trouble for others? When initially, most people like it when others are different. So who really is crazy, and who is not? Well let's just take a little look.

First we have people that do not believe in religion. They believe religion is some sort of fairy tale, and that most religious people should get a clue and wake up.

But then we have the people that believe in religions, and they think these people that don't believe, have something wrong with them. As the only true path is God. Even though they cannot see it, does not mean that it doesn't exist.

But the opposite applies to everything. Just because there is no proof, it does not mean it exists. But it does not mean that it doesn't exist.

So this is the beginning of where the problem lies.

Because there is an opposite with everything, there needs to be a system put in place, so that everyone can believe what they choose to believe in, without any one being criticized. So how would we be able to do this in a world that has been created this way? It is fed to us through T.V, Radio, Games, Communities, schooling, books. What are we to do?

Obviously the simple solution would be getting rid of the whole lot. But I think we all know that cannot happen. Why? Because money is involved. Without all of these things, money cannot circulate. So in the end, money is the culprit, and is one of the largest causes of problems within this world.

By looking at it this way, we have all been driven crazy, by those who decided money would be a good thing. But they forgot about the opposite reaction, or did they? Did they do all this to create chaos, or did they believe they were doing a good thing? So who really is crazy? Is it the people that try to bring you the truth? Or is it people that sit on their hands not doing anything to solve the problems, and running around criticizing those people?

Religion is one thing that presses this issue on to us all. With good their must always come evil. In one sense they are correct, because of the opposites. But in another sense was defines good and evil.

What defines a good person? Is it someone who tries to do good all the time, by feeding people, allowing poisons to be added to our foods, because it's for the good? Or maybe a good person is someone who tries to protect his or her people from harm? Simply by killing those who get in their way?

Or maybe a good person is some one that respects all life, and lives by none of the means our modern world does? They do not care for colour, so there is no racism. They do not care of which sex they are, so the is no sexists. There is only one belief system, and that is to believe what one chooses, so there is no prejudice. Could we live like that? Or is it really that hard in a world gone crazy?

Is there a way of living with opposites? Does there have to be opposites? Why can't we all just get along?

These answers are simple. It's because there are people in power, they do not wish this to happen. It will mean the collapse of their rein. Let me ask you a question you need to think about. If you worked hard to get a home, even built it yourself; make a farm to feed a family; finally get everything running just the way you like it. Would you be willing to give it all up?

This is a tough question I know, but it's what you are asking these people who built the world up to what it is today. It is always improving, no matter how we look at it. Even when we think it's all going to collapse, it always manages to get back on its feet again. There's an old saying that, history always repeats itself. Well this is true, but it's also improving on itself. We already know things are very different from the old days. I believe we are getting much better than the way things used to be. I for one; am excited to live in this day and age, especially when we are right in the middle of a transition. This transition will be one to see if history will repeat itself again. Will everything fall and collapse, as it has done in the past? Or are we going to find a way out of this one, and all pitch in together, to help solve the problems of the world?

Your voices are, and will be heard. Because the more people that can agree on one thing; can help make this world a better place. This internet was specifically designed for you people to have your say, and to be heard from all walks of life. I knew this after spending a short time on here. So I did exactly that, and spread my words globally. It did not bother me whether people were listening or not, but it was a way for me to express myself, and hopefully talk some sense into people, especially those in power. I know there is always someone listening, and if you can get through to the right people, then all of a sudden it makes its way to the top of the ladder.

It does not matter whether what I am writing has spelling errors or grammar issues, as long as the people at the top get the idea, that's all that counts in the end. So the way I see it, there can only be good, because we, the people are what makes the world good. There will always be evil, but what really is good and evil if both are doing the same things?

This is why I called for a balance between both, as I have always believed there should be a balance between everything. If at any time a person chooses good over evil, or visa versa, everything collapses and falls, as history shows us. I deliberately wrote a letter on one of the largest forum sites on the internet, which is here now <http://mayanmajix.com/art4635.html>

As the site I originally posted it on, would not allow it to stay. Which then makes you wonder why? Why would a site not allow balance between all of us? I think you know the answer, so there is no need for me to give one. But I did spread this message everywhere, emails, facebook, youtube and locally. Sadly I have closed my facebook and youtube accounts, knowing quite well, the next war we face will be a cyber-war. See even the hackers out there are fighting against the higher powers, thinking that the world owes them something, when really they are just like all of us. There is no point in fighting the higher powers, but working with them together. Then, and only then we can all become true co-creators. I believe that this is the only way we can all evolve, by creating a balance within the system.

This whole world runs by a game. Most of us like to play games, but can you outsmart the computer? Ever played a game of chess on the computer on expert level? Well that's the game we are all playing. I am a pawn on the board, but yet even a pawn can checkmate a king, if positioned correctly. Doesn't mean that I need to hurt innocent people along the way. So you see even the hackers are no better than the higher powers. We are all getting into trouble because of our opposites.

So all I can ask to whoever reads this. Sit back and think about what you are going to post before you post it. Because you never really know who might be listening? Never be afraid to post what you feel, and no one should have to right to call you crazy. Because really, we are all living in a world gone crazy. It just depends now, if we can all become sane enough to make this difference in the next transition. I really hope you can all find within yourselves, a way to just let be, be. Hopefully without criticizing people's thoughts, or colour, or religious beliefs.

Even though I know how hard it can be for some of you to do this. It's all about letting it go, and move on to the next topic. If you feel you have something to add, then do so, just remember to be respectful, because like I said, you never know who is listening.

I am one person who has done this all my life, so I know it's possible. I always believed the saying, practice what you preach. Otherwise no one will listen.

Well, are you listening?

My love goes out to each and every one of you.

Rick
