"Our family has been stuck as to how best to support one another and move forward with compassion. Your astrological reading and intuitive insights have given us so much light on the situation that we feel confident in moving forward with much deeper knowledge and understanding. Thank you," ~ May

Tip of the Week:

We have all heard that 'change is the law and it is the only constant.' Yet, despite the futility, it is also common to resist change. This is the sign of ego-control. Ego basically equates to fear and instinct, while soul equates to love and intuition. Yes, instinct and intuition are distinctly different. The question to ask is: Am I predominantly centered in fear or love?

Centering in love implies presence, whereby over-emphasis on the past and future are reduced. Other examples include innocence without naiveté', loyalty without blind allegiance, surrender without reactive conformity, a deep sense of connection with people and life in general, without feeling alone or alienated or orientations to networks that uphold rigid repeats of attitudes, perspectives and self-concepts.

To be centered in love implies presence, gratitude, receptivity, joy, and peace, and relegates fear to instinctual response when needed, as opposed to the norm. It can also be said that love supports intelligent, intuitive adaptation, while fear resists.

Aquarius is symbolic of futurism, humanism, revolutionary change, and the reality that while change steadily flows, it can also prove, or at least seem to be, sudden and unexpected. Aquarius is also symbolic of individuality balanced by a deep feeling of communal connection with others, intuitive, illuminating insight, and epiphanies.

So, 'let's exercise our Aquarius' to consider what being centered in fear looks like...

A 'fear-centered' posture can be easily recognized because the perspective and attitude are highly highly polarized and rationalized, such as knowing exactly why this, that, or the other(s)... are hated. The dialogue exchange and sharing of thoughts, feelings, concerns, interpretations, and knowledge is replaced by highly rationalized polarization, rejection, alienation, and at least passive-aggressive conflict, or worse.

Yet, the rationalization is based on irrational reaction, due to unconscious over-idealism, and notions of utopia, both symptoms of extreme instinctual reaction and ego-survival. The projection of 'fight' is that the 'others' are deemed insane imbeciles who give their allegiance to absolute evil, both of whom should be 're-educated' or 'deleted' altogether.

If yours or anyone's perspectives are highly polarized as with reactive, matter-of-fact, dismissive rationalization, it is probably the symptom of fear and unrecognized and unresolved trauma. Occasional lapses into fear is natural, yet centering in it can be described as an imbalance or illness. As the story goes, the medicine required is love, which can be identified as open, mutually respectful discussions of perspectives that are intuitively received, leading to new, evolving considerations.

So, in alignment with the 9-Year that 2025 equates to, the number of endings, completions, and graduations, the themes of the Year of the Wood Snake from Chinese Astrology, and those of the White Spectral World-Bridger from Mayan Astrology (which aligns with it) are all converging to reveal quite a similar theme, which can be described as definite and ‘probably’ radical changes, which I will do my best to provide insights about to guide you through.

To do so in a very personal and precise way, a personal Reading with me is the way to go.

Have a great week,

Michael

Weekly Horoscope:

Aries (Mar 21 – Apr 20)

The primary relationship in life is ever with your own body, mind, heart, and soul. As obvious as this is, it is often overlooked, neglected, and taken for granted. Honoring this relationship, and supported by a determination to be genuinely honest with how you feel, determine what major decision you need to make in your life.

Taurus (Apr 20 – May 21)

This Aquarius New Moon in your solar house of career and public reputation, and with its ruling planet Uranus in your sign, and now direct after several months of retrograde, altogether indicate that either some key events are destined to activate you, or the time has come to make some power moves.

Gemini (May 21 – Jun 21)

The Air Element of Aquarius harmonizes with your own and is destined to synchronize with waves of inspiration. However, you may have to be intentional and receptive to both recognize and receive them. Anticipate them and exercise gratitude to enter the best state of presence - yes the most precious gift.

Cancer (Jun 21 – Jul 22)

This Aquarius New Moon brings with it a theme of liberation. What form it comes in depends on you and your circumstances. In alignment with Imbolc, consider doing some early spring cleaning, consider an organ cleanse or purification of your mind and soul, and be thanking, forgiving, and releasing past people and experiences.

Leo (Jul 22 – Aug 23)

This Aquarius New Moon is directing the spotlight to your relationship life. This can include family and colleagues too as well as love partners. Either way, the invitation is to dive deeply into a place of intimate acknowledgment and/or of embrace. Love is ever the elixir and it is time to let it flow.

Virgo (Aug 23 – Sep 22)

Aquarius energy combined with your sign tends to activate inventiveness. It can be in the form of original ideas, designs, or new ways of approaching habitual situations, and so on. In this instance, a quiet and receptive state may prove necessary to think and feel deeply, or simply to open your mind.

Libra (Sep 22 – Oct 22)

Aquarius is a creative compliment for you and during its cycle you are given even more opportunity to align with it. The key is to be playful, to allow your child out, which includes a relative state of openness and a willingness to lighten-up, see the humor and the value of making others smile and laugh.

Scorpio (Oct 22 – Nov 21)

While it might come as a surprise to hear, Aquarius has an influence on you at a core level of your being. It is that quirky side of you, and the rebellious one too. It is the source of your sense of individuality, guiding you to be uniquely you, and which you probably have little choice otherwise, anyway.

Sagittarius (Nov 21 – Dec 21)

This Aquarius New Moon is destined to awaken you to a whole new perspective. The emphasis points directly to your daily rhythm and lifestyle in general. Creating more beauty to feel inspired is featured. Yet, you will probably need some help to shift out of dreaming mode and into action.

Capricorn (Dec 21 – Jan 19)

The Aquarian factor now fully activated will guide you to plan for the future. This can include broadening your perspective, assessing both the probabilities and the possibilities, and making key investments. The main caution is to keep your imagination in check and balancing awareness with presence.

Aquarius (Jan 19 – Feb 19)

The New Moon in your sign signifies an impulse to take new initiatives. This is your cue to be deliberate to break out of any patterns whether of perception, attitude or behaviour that might be limiting you. Some degree of willful determination might be required, so decide and replace analysis with action.

Pisces (Feb 19 – Mar 20)

Aquarius time offers an invitation to lay low and retreat for a while. Yet, this does not strictly imply passivity. In fact, you could even be busier than usual, and on a variety of fronts. What you might yearn for less of is social engagement. Productivity and advancement, even personal growth and evolution are keywords.
